

Costume Society of America

Education • Research
Preservation • Design

Founded in 1973, the Costume Society of America (CSA) is an international organization devoted to the study of dress. The primary role of the organization is to encourage and support scholarship and its dissemination through research papers and publications. The society functions to raise the profile and credibility of studies in all aspects of dress and fashion.

Members share an overall interest in education, research, preservation, and the design of costume. Members work in museums, libraries, and theaters. Some work in the academic world or the apparel industry, and others are private collectors or independent scholars. We all have an abiding interest in the study and interpretation of clothing, its creation, and its history.

Benefits & Opportunities: National and regional publications, symposia & meetings, study tours, grants & scholarships.
